Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If the period for reply specified above is less than thirty (30) days, a reply within the statutory minimum of thirty (30) days will be considered timely.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

DETAILED ACTION

1. This is in response to the communication received on June 19, 2001. Claims 1-7 are currently pending in this application.

Specification

Abstract

2. Applicant's abstract is only one short sentence and does not properly identify the applicant's invention.

Applicant is reminded of the proper content of an abstract of the disclosure.

A patent abstract is a concise statement of the technical disclosure of the patent and should include that which is new in the art to which the invention pertains. If the patent is of a basic nature, the entire technical disclosure may be new in the art, and the abstract should be directed to the entire disclosure. If the patent is in the nature of an improvement in an old apparatus, process, product, or composition, the abstract should include the technical disclosure of the improvement. In certain patents, particularly those for compounds and compositions, wherein the process for making and/or the use thereof are not obvious, the abstract should set forth a process for making and/or use thereof. If the new technical disclosure involves modifications or alternatives, the abstract should mention by way of example the preferred modification or alternative.

The abstract should not refer to purported merits or speculative applications of the invention and should not compare the invention with the prior art.

Where applicable, the abstract should include the following:

- (1) if a machine or apparatus, its organization and operation;
- (2) if an article, its method of making;
- (3) if a chemical compound, its identity and use;
- (4) if a mixture, its ingredients;
- (5) if a process, the steps.

Extensive mechanical and design details of apparatus should not be given.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

3. Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

The basis of this rejection is set forth in a two-prong test of:

- (1) whether the invention is within the technological arts; and
- (2) whether the invention produces a useful, concrete, and tangible result.

For a claimed invention to be statutory, the claimed invention must be within the technological arts. Mere ideas in the abstract (i.e., abstract idea, law of nature, natural phenomena) that do not apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts fail to promote the "progress of science and the useful arts" (i.e., the physical sciences as opposed to social sciences, for example) and therefore are found to be non-statutory subject matter. For a process claim to pass muster, the recited process must somehow apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts.

In the present case, the inventive concept in claims 1-7 only recite an abstract idea. The recited steps of inputting information and matching an attorney does not apply, involve, use or advance the technological arts since all the steps can be performed in the mind of the user or by use of pencil and paper and no specific technology (computer, processor) is expressly recited in the body of the claims.

Mere intended or nominal use of a component, albeit within the technological arts, does not confer statutory subject matter to an otherwise abstract idea if the component does not apply, involve, use, or advance the underlying process.

In the present case, the mention of a database is a nominal recitation of any technology.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Rizzo et al (us 6,470,338) (hereinafter referred to as Rizzo).

Referring to Claims 1-3:

Rizzo discloses a process and system for matching clients to lawyers comprising:
inputting into a database information about a client's case Fig. 1A (80), Figs. 2, 3; inputting into a database information concerning an attorney's background (col. 1, lines 45-63);
and matching said client to an attorney based on said information (Fig. 1B (260-270), Fig. 4).

Rizzo further discloses wherein said information about said client's case comprises jurisdiction of said case, type or attorney needed and personal information (Fig. 3 (100) (110).

Rizzo further discloses wherein information about an attorney comprises legal background and personal information (Fig. 4, col. 4, lines 7-11)). This information is inherent in a system that matches.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being obvious over Rizzo in view of Meltzer et al (US 6,366,925) (hereinafter referred to as Meltzer).

A method for hiring lawyers and managing a case comprising:

Rizzo discloses receiving information about a client's case (1A (80), Figs. 37);

Selecting a lawyer based on said client case (Fig. 1B);

Electronically linking into a secured database the client and lawyer (Fig. 1c).

Rizzo does not disclose negotiating an agreement between said client and lawyer;

However, Meltzer discloses a retainer agreement (Fig. 2C (124)) It would have been obvious to incorporate into the disclosure of Rizzo the teachings of Meltzer since it is common business practice in the legal field to have a retainer agreement prior to the actual commencement of legal services.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Meltzer discloses a system for conducting legal services with a retainer acknowledgement.

Lovig discloses a method and system for internet delivery of legal services.

Elawforum Corporation discloses a system and method for buying and selling legal services over a network.

Barker discloses a system for establishing legal representation for a traffic violation via a web site.

Lawyershomepage.com discloses a website for matching clients with attorneys.
